

Jason S. Gorey Senior Advisor

Jason Gorey has more than a decade of diverse national security experience in both the public and private sectors, with specific focuses on intelligence, cybersecurity, foreign policy, and the defense industrial base. An entrepreneur at heart, he has founded a defense consulting company and co-founded an alcoholic beverage company. He serves as an operations advisor to the Defense Production Act Committee, a Cabinet-level interagency body co-chaired by the Secretaries of Defense and Homeland Security established to advise the President on the effective use of the powerful authorities established by the Defense Production Act.

Jason also provides outreach support to the joint DoD/NSA Trusted Foundry Program, which enables secure production, transportation, and implementation of microelectronics for the U.S. Government and other critical systems. In his limited free time, Mr. Gorey is developing a user behavior based cybersecurity platform and writing a PhD dissertation.

As a civilian, Mr. Gorey has held a career human intelligence position at the Defense Intelligence Agency; was appointed by the White House as a Senior Foreign Affairs Officer at the Department of State, where his portfolio included Guantanamo Bay detainee policy and diplomacy for the Middle East and Africa as well as war crimes issues in the northern half of Africa; and served as a desk coordinator at the White House Office of Political Affairs.

As a military officer, Mr. Gorey is now a Defense Attaché (Reserves) assigned to the Defense Intelligence Agency. Previously, he served as an Intelligence Officer assigned to 1st Information Operations Command (Land), where he was deployed for a yearlong tour, split between Iraq and Afghanistan, as the Officer in Charge for Computer Network Defense for U.S. Army networks and as the Southwest Asia Computer Defense Assistance Program Team Chief.
